Recorded using only vintage equipment and recording techniques, the album features P-Funk legend Kevin Goins on lead vocals. PTheory have been playing under various guises for over 10 years. A musical collective that is lead by Alex Campbell and Graham Kay, dedicated to bringing the soul and organic feel back into modern music. Based in Chester (UK) Alex and Graham founded PTheory with the sole purpose of creating original music using the same basic ingredients that their heroes had used. So the lid came off and the probes went in on the Band of Gypsies, Funkadelic and all the other black rock / funk acts of the golden era of music.? The sounds were analysed and the playing pulled apart until all the basic ingredients were detailed and understood. This focus and drive eventually lead PTheory to the home of the original funk Plainfield, New Jersey and the legendary Kevin Goins band leader of Quazar and General Kane. Kevin, along with his late brother Glen, had created many funk landmarks during his career along and has one of the most highly respected soul voices ever. The bond and mutual respect was instantaneous and lead to the successful creation of a full album over a 2 week period. Provisionally titled "From the Wood to the Hood" the album offers a deeper alternative to the original PFunk style and offers lots of positive messages as opposed to the normal negative wannabe player bullshit that saturates the modern music industry.
