But the city most famous for Corvettes and Nappy Roots has spawned just that: Perfect Confusion. Perfect Confusion was formed in summer of 2001. A group of young kids heavily influenced by the sounds of 70's music and culture, they set out to create a sound that they couldn't find in today's rock genre. A sound that was raw and charged with a message. The five piece band immediately began performing and building a name for itself with a dynamic mix of groove, soul and rock'n'roll that's hard to categorize but easy to love. Singer Matt Shultz leads the band with a unique vocal style, lyrics and a solid stage presence. Bassist David Kem and drummer Jared Champion make up the band's powerful rhythm section. Kem's driving bass lines and Champion's funky, foot-stomping rhythms build a foundation for right-handed guitarist Brad Shultz's chomping guitar riffs and left handed guitarist Thomas Bullen's impassioned solos. Each song is a lesson on what five kids with a heart for music and a mind for change can do. In the summer of 2004 after months of rehearsal the band went into the studio to record their first full length album. After several months of performing in venues from Louisville to Nashville the band is beginning to build momentum, and will release their first self-titled album in december of 04.
