Related styles: POP: Quirky, ELECTRONIC: Electronica People who are interested in John Barry Goldfrapp The Divine Comedy should consider this download. Details: The Puzzle House (aka Keith Redfern) produce quirky home made pop music with half an eye on grander things. Whilst this album may be the work of a man alone in his shed, at least you know that he has a great record collection in there with him - Just check out the Bacharach influenced 'Yes' or the Morricone-esque title track. 'Hide and seek' has a touch of Goldfrapp while 'Airport lounge' could be Petula Clark meeting The Divine Comedy Featuring the vocal talents of acclaimed stage/screen actor and chanteuse Lisa Howard (currently appearing in The Dukes production of 'Beauty and the Beast' in Williamson Park Lancaster), 'Life in the bus lane' is a cycle of songs with a theme of escaping from the mundane. So if 'all you find are narrow minds and rainy Tuesday nights' then 'I know somewhere to forget your cares' - The Puzzle House of course
