Details: Boasting an arsenal of bright guitar hooks and four-part harmonies, the Brooklyn-based XYZ Affair made waves in 2006 with the independent release of A Few More Published Studies. The band had formed five years prior as the solo project of vocalist/guitarist Alex Feder, who later expanded the group with the addition of several NYU classmates. Russ Maschmeyer (keyboards, guitar), Sam Rockwell (drums), and Chris Bonner (bass) all climbed aboard, and XYZ Affair began crafting tight power pop songs in the tradition of Big Star and Weezer. Greeted by a lackluster reception from New York's indie circles, the band targeted a wider audience with their first music video, which featured cameos from several former Nickelodeon stars. The video was a viral success, pairing XYZ Affair's clever songcraft with a story line involving members of Double Dare, The Adventures of Pete Pete, Salute Your Shorts, and Clarissa Explains It All. With their internet popularity growing, the band continued playing local shows -- this time to much larger audiences -- in support of their self-released debut album. -All Music Guide
