He's managed to create a very heartfelt and soulful music entity that Nashville said couldn't be done. An African American Country artist that has beat his head against the closing walls of Music Row in Nashville and has punched his way in. He has not lost the faith and persistence that sustained his passion for a new style of country music. You hear truth in his songs such as "Heart of the Little Town" , that was used to raise monies for the Arkansas Tornado Victims in 96'. It tells the story of small Town America that comes together through troubled times to help one another. "Morning Nite" a love song that transcends all ages along with the line-dance hit "634-5789" choreopgrahed by Max Perry. Mark McCuen of CBS This Morning fame said it best. "There's something inside this young man that won't make him quit in his fight to have his music heard. An Arkansas native, John grew up in a town of about 300 people. Not a lot of things to do but listen to the great sounds of country music as his father would take him to work with him and to fishing and hunting. This is where John met Country greats such as Jim Ed Brown, Porter Wagner, Jerry Clower and many others. John's dad was a hunting guide back then and John captured the sounds of country and created his on style called "Country Soul"..The Heart of The Little Town" CD has something for all age groups and you won't change the tracks before they play out. How interesting huh. John lets the fans be the judge. He didn't let Nashville keep his music out, but now its available to the on-line digital fans of today. Don't miss out on true history. This is an album for all country music lovers to possess and pass it on to their kids. You can only get it her today on CD- Baby. Buy It Now!!!!
