Three sisters, three voices, one unique sound. Traditional celtic songs mixed with contemporary beats to elate, relax and raise the spirit to an Enya-like plateau. 12 MP3 Songs EASY LISTENING: Mood Music, WORLD: Celtic Details: Sirocco sirocco.tv Sirocco are a versatile three part harmony sister group from the beautiful rolling hills of Co. Kerry Ireland. Having performed for many summers in the National Folk Theatre of Ireland, the girls gained a love of their Irish music and folklore. "Black is the Color" is inspired by the love the girls have for their native land and traditions. It is a haunting album beautifully orchestrated with also many up tempo and contemporary beats to traditional songs. "Sally Gardens" and "Will You Go Lassie Go" are traditional Irish ballads but with a new twist, where as Danny Boy has the big ballad feel. It is an album with a difference sung by three voices with one unique sound as only siblings can manage. Sirocco recorded "Black is the Color" in February 2005 and were then invited to sing for Governor Pataki at the Waldorf Astoria for St. Patricks' Day where they were well received. They performed for the Governor again in 2006 and sang the Irish National anthem in Times Square as well. The crowds response was awesome! The sisters Fiona (21) Naomi (18) and Evangeline (16) as well as singers and performers, are songwriters at heart. They are currently working on their original album in the U.S. which will take Sirocco in a new and exciting direction. You can catch a glimpse of things to come on myspace.com/defyallmusic. Their beautiful voices as well as their blend of harmonies make these sisters stand out as a class act, no matter what genre they perform!!!! Watch this space! Watch out WORLD!
