On a beautiful spring day, Princess Alana, the ravishing, spirited, and willful daughter of the King and Queen of Layla, risks her reputation - and her life - by leaving the safety of the castle. Falling into mortal danger, she is rescued by the Grey Knight with whom she falls in love, angering her parents and risking her upcoming marriage to the prince of a neighboring kingdom. All the princess and her knight-rescuer have to offer is a story only a hermit and an old witch initially believe. But once the truth is learned, the ultimate dilemma remains: who will Princess Alana marry - Prince Harland II, the royal to whom she was betrothed (and someone who feels betrayed by his father, the King of Terron); or the noble knight man who saved her life with a "breath of life" (someone who has loved her from afar but has never been considered "worthy" of marrying a princess)? Could the answer be found in...a joust? This romantic love story, written by first-time author Elizabeth Gibbs, brings together the color of a medieval setting with fast-paced storytelling and a cornucopia of compelling characters that interweave through a story of passion and adventure.
