An Olympic 800m contender is bitterly disappointed by injury and decides to forge a new dream. Trading his world-class legs for a trusty BMW R1100GS - 'the Grizzly Bear of the world touring scene' - Gideon van Oudtshoorn embarks on a marathon journey across South and North America, 37, 618 kilometre odyssey of epic proportions. With refreshing emotion and honesty, van Oudtshoorn describes the untouched wilderness, his descent into drug-hell, the joy of recovery and the euphoria of life on the road. The threat of mind-numbing normality drives him into the unknown to conquer uncharted territory and to face his inner fears. A book to inspire would-be and has-been travellers and anyone who has the guts to pick up the pieces with an attitude of never-say-die. A truly fascinating read! About the author: Gideon van Oudtshoorn is from Randburg in Johannesburg. He matriculated at Randburg High and went on to study a degree in Transport Economics at University of Johannesburg. He was a professional 800m athlete 1997-2002 and qualified for the 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney. After injuries ended his running career in 2002 he embarked on a solo motorbike journey from the southernmost point of Argentina to Alaska. He is the author of a book called "From South to North", a biography of his adventures on this journey.
