This is the purest form of Hip Hop, my style is not like any other M.C. 18 MP3 Songs HIP HOP/RAP: East Coast, HIP HOP/RAP: Hip Hop Details: You are in the midst of a young Tyrant. Enter the life of a Bronx bread Queens native named BLaze. BLaze left home at the age of 14. To BLaze, living on the streets and selling drugs to make a living was better than being mentally and physically abused by his father. Deep inside, BLaze knew what he was doing for income was wrong so he decided to give up the drug game to pursue a career in Hip Hop. Walking away meant escaping any ties to the pleasures of making fast money. After spending a year in jail, to avoid getting caught up again BLaze moved to Jamaica Queens. To further his music career, BLaze started to perform with a live band called CrossRoads. In the early 90's BLaze opened up for CNN(Capone-n-Noreaga) in a local Manhattan night club hosted by Grandma Funk. BLaze also ate a lot of MC's food in freestyle contests hosted by DJ Enuff at club Arena, and on corner's from Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens to Staten Isle. A friend was interning for a casting company that was casting for the movie ABOVE THE RIM, starring TUPAC Shakur, Duane Martin, LEON, Marlon Waynes, and Bernie Mac. Ulyesses Terrero cast BLaze as one of the members of TUPAC's crew, The Birdie Boys, and BLaze utilized the opportunity. During the film, BLaze built a close relationship with TUPAC. A year later, BLaze landed a co-starring role in the Spike Lee film, New Jersey Drive, which set a path for more roles in the near future. But just when things were looking good, time made a tragic halt. On June 23rd, 1996, BLaze suffered from a fatal knife wound that ripped through his heart and collapsed his lung. The near fatal tragedy left BLaze in a coma, and he was in intensive care at Mary Immaculate Hospital in Jamaica, Queens. He was released two days after coming out of a coma. Looking for revenge would mean throwing away all that he worked for so BLaze and a friend (Jessy Terrero) moved to Hollywood, Cali. Making the move to Cali, gave them an opportunity to get away from the congested N.Y. lifestyle so they could focus on their goal's. In 1998, BLaze went on the "Survival of da Illest" tour with ONyx & (50 CENT), Def Squad, DMX, and Cormega. A year later, BLaze landed a song called "Ghetto's a Battlefield" featuring Fredro Starr aka Firestarr on the soundtrack of the movie "Light It Up". The soundtrack also featured N-SYNC, OUTKAST, DMX, JARULE, MASTER P, and 112. The soundtrack sold over 500,000 copies and went Gold, but BLaze being unsigned was still looking for a label deal. Frustrated at not being signed, BLaze decided to start his own label, and named it Tyrantz Associates Music Group. In 2001, BLaze went on another tour with TUPAC's OUTLAWZ. A year later, BLaze went on the "Take Me Home" tour opening up for Bone Thugs n Harmony in 2003-04-05. "The Spring Bling" tour (2005). BLaze toured with Trick Daddy, Too Short, OUTLAWZ, and TecN9Ne. Touring for the last four years, taught BLaze the ins and outs about the music industry. Now witness the first ever double album and dvd titled Projects 2 Palmtreez COMIN SOON!!! Reparationz 4A Dream selling over 100,000 plus copies on tour nationwide which landed three songs on the feature film "Soul Plane" the score. BLaze also put out Tyrant t-shirt's, and did a number of songs on mixtapes nationwide (DJ WhooKid, DJ John John, DJ Warrior, DJ khaled, and Play-n-Skillz (Chopped and screwed mixtapes all over Texas). Now after seven movies, four T.V. shows, and a number of commercials, the driven entrepreneur has his mind made up... Do we have to say anymore where this young Tyrant is heading?
