Americana, Folk Rock, Blues, Jazz 5 MP3 Songs ROCK: Americana, FOLK: Folk Pop Details: A theatrical singer/songwriter mixing blues, jazz, and rock into a folk venue. Influences range from Bruce Springsteen to Frank Sinatra, with Jackson Browne and Perry Como sitting right there in the middle. I have always been fascinated by music, movies, art, theatre, and writing that I don't think a day goes by that I don't want to be an entertainer. Like most people who are like me, the long term goal is to be able to give up the day job. Being a singer/songwriter is one of the avenues I wish to pursue in the entertainment business. My influences range from Springsteen's east coast rock to Sinatra's Big Band, from Chicago blues to the Philly Sound, from the British invasion to California's elite song writer, Jackson Browne. As a writer the one stipulation I have about my music is that it offers a quality of light. Sometimes there is a necessity for darkness but there is no need for overkill. It goes both ways. For me a healthy balance must be maintained. I don't consider my work to be middle of the road, but barely just staying on an unbeaten path. At 36 years of age I am presently working in computer graphics, and on the verge of starting my own business in multi media, interactive CD Rom Development. In fact "Shadows In The Harbor," my third collection of music has also been released as an enhanced CD Rom. I want 2002 to be the year I make the transition into this long pursued career. The possibilities in today's technologies are endless. The years ahead are going the same direction as the education and knowledge that I have accumulated over my thirty-six years. I have become a musician, an actor, an artist, and a jack of all trades. Call me an entertainer.
