Details: In 2005, Fred and Kris's first pieces were written with Swedish northern lights as a backdrop. The latter, also known as aurora borealis, were to give birth to the initial project and the current bands name. The piano, guitar and bass parts were indeed compiled under the name 'Borea'. They were characterized by their tuneful style and a mood echoing with Tim Burton's movies. Fred was then a pianist in a musical - LuleSpexet 2005. This enabled him to give public performances during a Swedish tour including many towns: Stockholm, Lulea, Linkping, Skelleftea, Gteborg... 2006 was the year when the BOREA project took shape in Nancy, France, where Fred was then a student in Computer Science. The four-member band gave public performances in the East of France (Nancy, Metz, Belfort, Montbliard where Fred comes from) and in Luxembourg. They also recorded their first demo under the name of The Washing Machine. Last but not least, in 2007 Fred and Kris left Nancy, moved to Paris and Nico joined them on the drums. More stimulated than ever, the band quickly got a new pop identity when the bands various influences converged. They soon performed in several spots in Paris. With no label or producer, the band decide to put a lot into the project of a debut album. The tracks were recorded in studios, Fred and Kriss living room and even in Nicos kitchen!
