By the time he was in high school, he was playing in local rock bands. Upon hearing Wes Montgomery and Pat Martino, he decided to take up serious study of jazz guitar by attending Ithaca College of Music. He received his Bachelor of Music in Jazz Studies (1988-1992) from Ithaca College, where he studied with guitar great, arranger, and educator par excellence, Steve Brown. In 1993 he moved to New York City where he learned to "really play through the streets" by becoming part of the burgeoning downtown village scene. He studied privately with Wayne Krantz, Pat Martino, Joanne Brackeen, Jack Wilkins, Vic Juris, and Mick Goodrick, all the while getting a chance to play with Omer Avital, Avishai Cohen, Daniel Freedman, Oz Noy, Ralph Peterson, Chris Potter, Dion Parsons, Ugonna Okegwo, Duane Eubanks, Jay Collins, Grant Stewart, Sasha Perry, Victor Jones, Cliff Barbaro, Big John Patton, and Frank Hewitt. While living in New York, Larry has developed a style of sharp-edged chording, crisply articulated lines, and the seemingly effortless ability to move between the two. His repertoire consists of standards, bebop, and challenging originals with one foot in the tradition and the other "Moving 4-Ward" into the future. Check out his new website: larrycorban.com
