Details: Jason Antone has had three amazing years making an impact on the music industry leading up to this full-length release. Jason burst onto the scene in 2006 with the official release of self-penned dance single With You which started the word of mouth about this young artist and singer-songwriter. What followed is something every artist dreams of, which is charting on Billboard. In 2007, Jason released Be Free (co-written with the incredible Georgie Porgie) followed by the 2008 single Loves Gonna Lead You Back which instantly hit the iTunes Dance Top 10 List. Both tracks back to back made the Top 25 on the Billboard Club Charts securing a place for Jason on the music industry map. The released singles includes remixes by Manny Lehman, Josh Harris, Peter Barona and more. The videos for these singles also got picked up by MTV Networks Logo Channel and also were distributed in video lounges and clubs nationwide by Promo Only. This success helped Jason get out and tours various part of the country in clubs and meeting his audience face to face. A Chicago native, Jason has been musical since he can remember. He started playing piano at three years old, then moved on to the violin, then the saxophone and then back to the piano. This was part of the territory for Jason since he was raised in a musical family. Jason's grandfather had his own Chicago band. His father also played in the band and instruments always surrounded the entire family. Growing up, Jason wanted to continue his music education so he decided to attend DePaul University for Vocal Studies and Music Management. Cementing that he's got the chops, Jason was invited to be featured on the praiseworthy Turn It Up America collection. These experiences started it all and help propel Jason into his own artist with his own vision, which cannot be any more evident than in his debut recording Start To Move. Jason's music can
