Its the mix of beautiful, impressionistic acoustic guitar music, latin grooves and a great sound, that makes you want to listen to "acoustic landscapes" again and again. Award-winning song: "Farewell to Simpsonia" 2nd at JPfolks Music Award 2004 12 MP3 Songs FOLK: Gentle, WORLD: Celtic Details: Marcus Doneus works in Linz/Austria as composer, guitarist and owner of the guitar school -store "gitarreladen ohrwurm." Starting at the age of 7, he spent 10 years in music school learning classical guitar, but very soon made his first steps into composing. Influenced by various artists of the guitar genre, he slowly found his very own musical language. The pieces are instrumental, based on the six string guitar (both nylon and steel string) and are meant as "acoustic paintings" of nature impressions and inner feelings. Famous New York guitarist Woody Mann describes the music like this: "Well done Marcus. The compositions are melodic and your playing is relaxed. I find this recording very sensitive and easy to listen to." The German magazine "Akustik Gitarre" writes: ... not only the cover design is perfect, but also the content of this nicely produced digipack. The playing of Marcus Doneus on steelstring- and nylonstring-guitar is mature and filled with sophisticated fingerstyle-techniques. His compositions are wide-ranged between "balladesque", lyrical, grooving and of astounding virtuosity... Each one of his "acoustic landscapes" leads to different associations by the listener ...
