Details: I started singing when I was just three years old. I remember my dad getting mad at me for recording over his homemade mix tapes. I guess I wasn't that good then. Despite of that my parents always supported my music and my decision to become a performer, even though now they tell me it's about time for something to finally work out. All joking aside, I have worked really hard on becoming a skilled singer and this album is definitely my best work yet. I wrote and produced every single song on this CD and this is not just some lame statement, I actually started writing and producing for other artists long before I began working on my own career as a singer. Every song on this album means a lot to me in some way or another and I really hope that people will be able to identify with it. I guess I should mention that I am not signed to a major record label, but I wont let that slow me down, I will be touring all through 2007 and hopefully with your support finally make it.
