This is what jamaican people hear about in commercials and see on billboard ads, but beneath the surface lies the gangs, political struggle, armed police and poverty. This is the mother who gave birth to Ras Emmanuel. Born in Kingston, Jamaica, Ras Emmanuel grew up with music in his soul, performing and making radio dubs for local DJs and radio stations. Ras Emmanuel saved extra monies doing jobs as a construction worker, fisherman, digging sand, and pushing through the garbage dump to find salvage metal and plastics. He made enough money to travel to the U.S. for the purpose of pursuing his career as a performer and entertainer. Ras Emmanuel is very diligent and serious about his career, spending countless nights in the studio, performing on subway platforms, clubs, and in parks. His music ranges from roots, dancehall, hip hop and R&B which compliments his messege of life's lessons and spirituality. Ras Emmanuel brings you a rastaman spirit and wisdom at its best. Ras Emmanuel wishes to spread knowledge and culture to african people of all walks of life, and all the people that cover the globe. He has been given the comparison and mixture of a messenger and traditional storyteller. Ras Emmanuel spreads music of happiness and positivity to blend with all the to common expression of violence and negativity. Topic of songs range from parenthood to coming together as a nation to heal the wounds of a hurt and forgotten heritage he truly expresses true greatness and genius.
