Coastal pop variety with rock, Americana and country influences. An easy sound that makes you want to kick back for a good time. 12 MP3 Songs EASY LISTENING: Soft Rock, POP: Folky Pop Details: Chris Pappalardo and Jim Ellis formed the band Waterline after a weekend trip to the Carolina coast. Having toured the world with slide guitar legends Sonny Landreth and Lee Roy Parnell, Chris was ready to settle down and call North Carolina his home. Jim had been performing and recording with Virginia area bands, but had always been drawn to the sea. The two of them had been playing music off and on since 1992 in various bands, but that weekend, they knew they had found their home...and Waterline was born. A loyal following grew as Waterline performed at clubs, festivals and house concerts from the Carolinas to Cabo San Lucas, Mexico. Waterline's sound is "coastal kick back music." Its mix of rock, pop and country often draws comparisons to Jackson Browne, Jimmy Buffett and Hootie the Blowfish. During live shows, guitarist Chris Pappalardo switches between acoustic, electric and slide guitars, offering a variety of moods even in their duo format, all perfectly complemented by Jim's "New Orleans Bruce Hornsby" piano style and smooth harmonies. When a full band format is called for, they add a drummer and bassist and create a sound similar to their high-energy recordings. Waterline's latest studio release, Long Goners, features an impressive rhythm section, including Sugar Hill recording artist Sonny Landreth and his band. This group has backed up John Hiatt as "The Goners" since the late 1980's, and Sonny's slide guitar can be heard on recordings from Jimmy Buffett to Dolly Parton. "Seeing Waterline perform live is quite an experience...they are serious, talented musicians with a terrific sense of fun, and a dynamic between them that engages the audience in the poignancy of their lyrics." --Capturing the Spirit of the Carolinas Magazine Waterline is "pop variety at its most infectious" --The Beat Magazine Waterline is booking shows both in duo and full band formats.
