Jeff Nicholson is a Canadian musician living in Tokyo, Japan. He also plays in the band, The Protractors and Accidentally on Purpose. On Saturday nights he can be found taking slapshots at a rink in

Yokohama, pretending he's Wayne Gretzky. He loves: his wife, Kimiko, daughter, Julia, beagle, Buddy, the Toronto Maple Leafs, rye and cokes, his Yamaha AW4416, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" (the cartoon, not the crappy movie), certain types of sushi, his cottage, butter tarts, bumper-shining when he was in elementary school in Regina, Sask., The Band, Brereton Lake, mullets, the Wawa Goose, his grade five students (past and present), Mordecai Richler, barbecued cheese burgers (with onions),

"Rainbow Country "and "The Beachcombers", Tim Horton's Donuts (apple or blueberry fritters), The Beatles, jogging, "Smokin' in the Boys Room" (Brownsville Station version- the first 45 he owned!),

Richard Yates, The Evil Dead 2, Costa Rica, CBC radio, hockey arena djs, bacon and eggs on Sunday mornings, and fly-in fishing camps. Add yourself to the list when you order his CD! Check out what people have to say: SCROLL DOWN...
