Details: The Corner Laughers are two recovering Catholic school girls who specialize in bouncy, clever, melodic pop songs about evolution, mythology, ancient history, and guys who are jerks. Their new album Tomb Of Leopards spans many genres and continents and features songs about being trapped in a bathroom in Rome with nothing but a Simon and Garfunkel CD; a tea party with Sherlock Holmes; the 9 Greek muses having seasonal flings in a small town in Michigan; joyfully reuniting with a loved one in the fiery pits of hell; seedy areas of 18th century London; and a succession of failed roommates. They have won several Garagebandawards including: Track of the Day in Power Pop, Best Female Vocals in Power Pop, Best Melody in Power Pop, Feel Good Track in Power Pop, Track of the Day in Alternative. Singer / ukuleleist Karla and guitarist Angela began writing music together the instant they met and both enjoy spending their spare time rescuing wild animals, watching time travel movies, and talking about sandwiches.
