Details: When he taught Psychology of Adjustment at SUNY, New Paltz, Dr. Mark Sherman often asked students to keep journals and hand in journal entries. The assignment was very open-ended, and as one of her journal writings, one of his top students, Amy Maucieri, handed in a poem titled Left Out to Dry in the Rain. As soon as he read it, Mark a longtime singer-songwriter saw song potential in it and asked Amy if he could try putting music to it. She said yes, he sat down at the piano with the words, and the result is a song that combines heartfelt lyrics with a catchy melody. Casey Erdmann is a young singer who is already attracting attention in the music-rich Hudson Valley of New York state (she has, on occasion, been compared to Norah Jones). The other performers are Mark Rust (guitar) and Robert Bard (bass). The recording was produced by Mark Sherman and Robert Bard at Skytop Sound in New Paltz, NY.
