These artists feel a deep obligation to the community, and music in general, to avoid the overused song content of misogyny, violence, wealth, and drug use. Instead, on a quest to change the hip-hop landscape, Repeat Offenders' emotional lyrics and performances attempt to expand this musical genre and address personal and social struggles that they and members of their community face. The history of this group traces back to the Pennsylvania dormitories of Millersville University during the fall of 1993. Through their love and knowledge of many musical genres, Shawn Jacks (aka S.L.U.G.) and Matthew Kolb (aka Thrill) met and formed an instant bond. Soon after their introduction, Shawn introduced Matthew to his lifelong friend, Chris Hammond (aka Hip Hop), and the seeds had been planted... To date, Repeat Offenders has reached out to audiences in Costa Rica and rocked live shows in PA, NJ, CT, and MA, including an award-winning performance at the Rock Solid Pressure Showcase in Danbury, CT. The first single from By Example, "I Found Her," was included on the Feoh Records' 2004 compilation, Summer Dying Fast, while other Repeat Offender tracks, like "Bounce To This" were included in the independent film project, "Mary/Jane". Their work has been reviewed and written about on several internet websites, and they have conducted several interviews with the media, including hip-hop's UNDEVCO magazine. The group has established firm relationships with other hip-hop artists nationwide (Broady Boy ACE, Artists Over Industry, Apollo's Sun, Elakwents, Head of Command, Phynite, and many others) and traveled to collaborate with them for live performances, including PA's first ever hip-hop festival, "Poramor". Most recently, the group has been teaming up with other artists for various shows and promoting their latest full-length album, entitled "By Example", released in August 2005.
