Details: Infuse presents, The first professional recording for the David Mapp quintet brings the album, on sex and suicide, truly original music released from the mind of musician and composer David Mapp. Sublime melodies set against the poetry of the darker tongue. The album explores social commentary in a new and totally original way. Catchy songs and impressive instrumentation pave the way to a return to how music should have been. David Mapp David Mapp was born in Chester and hopped between homes in Ellesmere Port and Blacon until he was 18 when he moved to Hertfordshire to study music composition. "I grew up on a mixed diet of Bowie and Iggy Pop from my father's side and Madonna and ABC from my mother. This has understandably, left me confused and disorientated." "Aside from song writing, my passions are poetry and philosophy. My ambition is to recluse to a tiny hermitage in the mountains, where I'll rock gently, endlessly reciting Plath who, I'll believe to occupy the cave next door."
