Baby It's Okay The complete song, the hit single. This song could go on radio any day, and be the No. 1 song in the country. From production, lyrics, concept, thru to delivery. This song has it all. Killer hook, killer verses. Pharrel and Jay Z haven't come anywhere near close to this since "I Just Wanna Love You" Filled with enough metaphors and charm to rival Fabolous. * Expect to see this song on the billboard charts this summer * 2. I Just Can't (Damn) The creativity behind this song is amazing. A song targeting the Latina audience. From the Eddie Murphy sample in the beginning, the funky guitar lines, crazy drum pattern, witty lyrics, It's packed with surprises. Every listen gives you a thrill. Refreshing to see that there are still creative artists out there, venturing outside the norm. With parts of the song in Spanish, The Latina audience has another reason to love Midas Touch besides looks. 3. Please The club track. Features samples from Pulp Fiction. Samuel L Jackson comes in "Say What Again!" A well put together track. Showcasing Touch' production skills as well as lyrics. Expect to hear people screaming "Bitch", in the clubs this summer. Love the third verse most, where it goes "Fuck you, - ummmm like in a threesome with me, u, and your mother?" that's hot. 4. I Just Wanna Catchy infectious hook. You'll be singing this in no time. The first verse starts "Sweetheart I'm better than Shakespeare, I write the kinda lines, that'll make you wanna shake my spear" Granted that will go over most heads, but you got to admit Not many artists around today have that kinda wit. A sleeper hit, you'll be singing this hook for a while. 5. Yeah!!! Lyrically a favorite of most listeners. The metaphors, production, and delivery on this song are flawless. You get to hear Midas Touch as intended. Many songs change thru production. This is one of the songs that stayed true to its vision. Killer lines that take you back to when rap was rap, and not just talking over beats. "A picture's worth a thousand words, my words are worth pictures" With the demise of Rawkus, songs like this are becoming more and more underground. Refreshing to see such a commercially viable artist be able to express such depth. 5 songs to introduce you to: "The best British MC, I've ever heard" - Derek Cooper (Atlanta Creative Loafing) "The total package, image, artistry, and product" - Ian Baines (Hip Hop Connection) "Take away the red tape and politics in the music industry, and this is what you'd hear on Hot 97" - Cipher Sounds (Hot 97, New York) Website: midasstouch.com E-Mail: sultcity@yahoo.com Phone: 212 252 5085
