The 2000 Pope Jane Release Hide Me From The Moon. One of the favorite albums of the classic all female power-trio that started out of Billings, Montana, and spread across the world like a prairie fire. This album has definitely ingested the right Mojo. Unpretentious, raw, unbridled spirit offered to listeners in fine Pope Jane style. Winner of numerous awards for production and songwriting in 2000, including best of submissions for the RockrGrl Conference 2000 in Seattle, WA, and Best Indie Band of 2000 by FEMMUSIC. Pope Jane's discography includes: "Dog and Pony Show" - 2003 "Industry Whore" - 2001 "Hide Me From The Moon" - 2000 "Relief" - 1998 "Pope Jane" - self titled 1996 In March of 2000, only one month after it's then new release, Pope Jane wowed the President of AEI Music Network with Hide Me From The Moon. The band signed a licensing agreement with the leading commercial foreground music provider, AEI Music Network, to use cuts off of Hide Me From The Moon on their world-distributed commercial foreground music tracks. Tracks from the Pope Jane classic Hide Me From the Moon are still being licensed and used in current film scores today, such as the 2006 upcoming Clear Pictures feature film, "Changing Spots". Pope Jane's singles from this album peppered the airwaves of commercial FM and college stations in 40 states and 8 countries. Grab yourself a copy and see what all the fuss is about! (Digital distribution soon.)
