When a 500 pound girl's daydreams of being thin turn obsessive, she uses real life atrocities against over confident business men for fuel; imagining herself as a thin, attractive, coke addicted call girl who picks up those same people and murders them in their beds. From the Creator, Sean Dietrich, that brought you Industriacide and Mess Reviews: "...the true star here is Dietrichs edgy, hyperactive art; he does a terrific job of selling the nasty reality of each moment in this womans life, and you believe in it as you pore through each page." - By Marc Nathon (Movie Poop Shoot) "The art contains an intriguing mix of elegant beauty and misshapen horror that reminded me of a Tool video if directed by Tim Burton...Simply put, if there is a book on the market that is as visually compelling in a twisted sense, I have yet to see it." - By Kert McAfee (Broken Frontier) "Its dark, eerie, and grotesque when it needs to be. You really do feel like youre immersed in another world entirely, a dark and revealing one." Suggested for Mature Readers
