Details: The Road To Gypsum A Prelude This is a story like no other in that the characters are truly fictional, but in the minds eye of a child they could be very real. The road to Gypsum is one that may be found on any road map of the USA, Canada, or more specific, where you live. Is it a place that truly exists? That is up to the reader to decide. Chapter 1 - On the Outside Looking In As a young child, the imagination of a boy or girl can be very vivid. Story telling and legends play an important role into how a young brain develops. It is this time of creativity that is evident when one listens to or reads a story. Take for example a young Davis OHeffe of Saltspring Island, BC heading to the corner store on a hot summers day with 25 cents in his pocket. He is truly excited, as on this day the 1st edition of a newly touted comic book has just been released. Davis wants to be the 1st kid on her block to own and read about these new, but different characters. Upon entering the store, he takes a moment to scan the shelves, when suddenly like a shinny coin on the sidewalk, it catches his attention. The two characters stand in place on the front cover. Davis takes the pages in his hands. His imagination about to expand as the two new heros come alive as he reads onward. What is more real now? The hot sun beating down on young Davis head as his creative imagination runs wild, or the heros of his new comic book and the adventures that lie ahead of them. The answer to the question is unclear, but the truth of the matter is that Davis himself is about to take an adventure as he heads down the Road to Gypsum, from the outside looking in. Chapter 2 My Town Let me tell you about my town, a place Ive grown up and lived in. A special place to live for me. Its one I think twice about. Thats when it began for me. Gypsum..a town nowhere, a town anywhere. It is where she was taken away from me. She was the love of my life and a perfect fit for me, and one day she was gone. Now I look for her night and day. Thats when it began for me Her name was Priscilla. Who took her away from me? Someone who was so small that I could not see them. Now I am left longing for her. Thats when it began for me. It was not rage, it was not jealousy. She was just so soft, so comfy and without her my life was never to be the same. She was my favourite chair! I became obsessed with finding her and every stranger caught my eye as they could be the one who took her away from me. Thats when it began for me. To the evil villain who has taken my love, how did you do that? Someday I WILL find you, because I am Reynard... Reynard the Cat ! Let me tell you about my town. A place Ive grown up and lived in. A special place to live for me. Its one I think twice about. Thats when it began for me. Now I look for her night and day. Now I look night and day

Chapter 3 Hamish Now Hamish was from the city. Everyone treated him differently, like he was someone that he was not. He felt like he did not fit in and decided he had to leave town. So he headed south one day. Here is what he had to say, Its not easy being different, just a hairy ball of fur. Not like a fish, bird or dog. I am a rodent, a pesky hedgehog sighed Hamish. Hamish finds himself leaving town and heads down a road he has never been on before. The road to Gypsum. As he continues his trek he explains, I took things into my hands. It is time to make a change in my life. I aint no rodent, no rat. I am going to set things straight at last. He took a right turn down the road and gathered his courage. Hamish is preparing himself for a personal epiphany in his hairy little life. He sees in the distance an alleyway, with a fence post propping up and old fence. Sitting atop of the fence is an old alley cat. His decision may seem rash, but it is the judgement call of his life. I am gonna take down that alley cat and make him know I aint no rat Hamish explains in a bold tone with his teeth gritted. He moves slowly towards the alley cat, gathering more courage and determination with every step. The scene is solemn for Hamish, yet for the alley cat it is going to be a turn of events. Things are about to drastically change for Hamish AND the cat atop the fence in the small alley way off the main road of Gypsum. Chapter 4 Reynard I was sitting on this here fence post. I was minding my own business. When suddenly down the road, strolled along, this rat, explained Reynard. He was like a furry hair ball, like a rodent from the City. I said Hey what the hell you doing? Then he, attacked me! Reynard describes the attack, Using those little paws, he grabbed and scratched my fur moving so fast it was like he was flying. He told me Things are going change, because I am not a RAT, but a hedgehog, gasped Hamish as he paused his attack on Reynard. Well MEOW

Reynard yelped to the Hog as his paws swatted and punched* (like fists of furry. Ill take your word for it Suddenly Hamish smiled and stopped the fight and said, Whats your name? I am Reynard the Cat! said Reynard. At that point, the two became instant best friends. It was like something magical had just happened, or like another force had just possessed them. They both knew it, but could not explain it at this time. Time will tell what came over them during this odd fight that became the backbone to their friendship.

Chapter 5 The Fight Interlude If you can imagine any movie that involves an epic fight scene, it is always accompanied by a symphonic musical score. Often this musical score tries to capture the emotions and thoughts that the main characters are feeling and thinking prior to heading into a battle. Most movie producers will use fade in and fade outs, close ups, slow motions as the battling groups get closer and closer to each other, whether it be on horse back, running across a smoky field with swords or guns drawn. These musical scores are often sombre and sad as they are foreshadowing the events that are about to take place. These events often end with death and destruction. For our two characters Hamish and Reynard, imagine this scene in your head as they slowly get closer and closer to each other. Hamish the Hedgehog about to attack! Reynard the cat sitting on the fence post with an one eye on Hamish, still looking night and day and wondering if he is the ONE ! Imagine a swooping circular pan around our characters that ends just before Hamish leaps air bound toward Reynard, ready to deliver the first blow. Reynard clenches his paw into a little fist, when suddenly
