In today's music world, punk/pop bands seem to be dominating the industry with a new one popping up everyday. Record labels seem to think that by holding a large audition and slapping together some guys with a songwriter they'll have a hit. Contrary to their belief, the market has been over-saturated with these boy groups, and music fans have long yearned for a punk/pop group that can put themselves together the old-fashioned way. Their wait is now over. The music scene has recently been taken by storm by a hot new music group full of energy and originality ready to takeover the world. They are called Frequency5. Johnny Lee, Jason Layden, Steven Koehler, Brent Fiege and Mike Baker make up this talented young group who combine their influences to form their own distinct sound and their own frequency. Johnny Lee from Frequency5 says, "Nothing has changed. The protocol has always been the same. You find talented guys that you can vibe with and then you practice, practice, practice. If something doesn't work, you change it and if there is a weak link, you replace it. Then in the end you have your perfect band with the right chemistry. Chemistry is something that comes from within your group. No producer or manager or label can create chemistry by putting a group of guys together in the same room. These newbreeds of bands are going about it all wrong. What we are about is back to the basics. We are five guys who came together for the music and have stayed together because we are doing something that is true to our hearts. We write and produce our own songs and have always relied on our own talents to get us there. Now we are ready to share everything we've done with the world. Frequency5 has been on a school tour with SEAP and 102.7 KIIS FM, Power106 and 100.3 The Beat of Los Angeles bringing their music to kids all across Southern CA. They have also appeared on the Disney Ch., Nickelodeon, and in Pop Star Magazine. You can currently see Frequency5 on their national PSA on Crime. Prevention airing on all CBS, NBC, ABC, MTV, ESPN and all other channels! Their publicist Juliette says "I've seen many acts come and go but Frequency5 has staying power and more potential to make it huge because their unique image has worldwide crossover appeal."
