Details: Homeless brother was created while on a Buddhist hermitage where one abandons all material possessions and lives about as simple as one can. The focus of this is to get rid of all of one's character defects as you abandon the ego. There is a strange serenity that cannot be found in any of the other compositions of Buddhaboy and Open eye Universe. We waited for five months before we began composing as we had to bring in equipment which represented material possession. This is more of a wonderful journey than one would expect and a childlike astonishment for life and all sentient beings came about as a result of this amazing experience. Try to imagine one day without the computer and a warm place to sleep let alone half a year as we did. This is certainly nothing to boast about but on the contrary if we didn't have to tell you how this album came about it would be best but it may not hold the same meaning to ur listeners and patrons if we didn't tell you what we did to make this happen. Many of the tracks were created using a synthesizer that was capable of running on batteries as we were literally in the middle of nowhere in the bush when we created the compositions for this album. The only contact we had in the beginning was with cdbaby's Alex and Derek who actually had a big influence on us as a result. Later in the program no blackberry, fire's made with magnifying glass and food had to be from the land only. Carrots seems like a luxury root to me now as they are so refined compared to the roots we ate during this experience. I was allowed to keep a few basic tools to sculpt stone and started sculpting a small mountainside to be busy and sane.
