SPOKEN WORD: Audiobook, SPOKEN WORD: Poetry Details: Gregor Southard, proclaimed as "the world's strongest poet," lives and works in Nashville, Tennessee as Production Manager for the internationally known performance hall The Ryman Auditorium. His poetry is often described "beautiful and insightful." His main influences are CS Lewis, GK Chesterton, and Martin Luther. Poets include William Wordsworth, William Blake, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, and Robert Frost. The song contributions to this cd are varied. Angie Broberg is a Nashville based country singer whose voice adds incredible beauty to the song "Don't You See?" John Dowell's style is reminiscent of Rich Mullins, Brian Gavron reminds me early Dan Fogelberg or James Taylor, and Jim Worthing's contribution is a great ACM song. The songs, journal entries, and poems form a month long journal of a man searching for the mercy and grace of God. You can find more information at: gregorsouthardandmyspace.com/worldsstrongestpoet
