Nineyears starts from a Dream, a project more than a band, a project that has got something to do with the so-called "art", i mean music, visual art, photography, video, poetry. Something, when you wake up in the morning, that makes you feel it's a good day. You might call it Life. This project took shape in the 14th of february 03, nine years after a tragic event that happened in my life. That fine day i wrote some of the tracks that now are in NineYears's first Album, "Duality". The whole process of writing came so easily, cos I needed to step out of sorrow and pain. I realised that i was using that energy in a positive way, to create. I believe in energy and numbers, nothing to do with superstition though! So, surprised by the outcome, I played the tracks to a friend of mine, Johnny, and we decided to work on that material, following the emotional flow generated by that powerful and deep music. Eventually we came out with some simple lyrics, often following the flow and regardless to any particular meaning. A bit like massive attack's Silent spring... Honestly, I was shocked by massive attack at first play. To telling the truth, ten years ago, I was musically "immature" and the effect of their music was quite devastating! besides, internet wasn't that good for the matter of downloading music, so i decided to drive half hour to get to my friend's place in order to listen to their music! Some years later I came across the track "protection". And it was a miracle. Sometimes i wonder if Massive attack use some magic ritual in order to write such beautiful tracks. That's my personal opinion though. When I was kid i've been listening to anything from Police to air... I think you can easily find their influence in my music... Thank you Maximilien the
