The Pasi organ was designed and built for Trinity Lutheran Church by Martin Pasi Organ Builders of Roy, Washington, and was dedicated on April 23, 1995. It is a 30 stop, 2 manual, tracker instrument in a free standing black walnut case. The organ has suspended mechanical key action and mechanical stop action. Review: CRAIG CRAMER ON THE PASI ORGAN, Trinity Lutheran Church, Lynnwood, Washington This artful blending of familiar recital fare with the less well known provides an intriguing introduction (for many of us) to the work of (organ) builder Martin Pasi of Roy, Wash. A native of Austria, Mr. Pasi trained and worked several years in that country with the Rieger Company before immigrating to the United States in 1981. The instrument heard here is Pasi Organ-builders Opus 4; five other instruments have been completed to date. It is difficult to know which aspect of this recording deserves the warmest praise! Suffice it to say that Dr. Cramers careful attention to phrasing and rhythmic detail make this recording truly user friendly. Likewise, builder and recording engineer have combined forces to give us wonderful clarity and brilliance when needed, but without the slightest hint of harshness. The detailed notes on registration add to the enjoyment of this fine recording. I recommend it highly. Jennifer Kolmes in The American Organist (2000)
