Dayna has spent many years mastering her art. Those years started at The University of Miami, where she was a member of the University's award winning vocal group, Jazz Vocal I (JV1). While a member, the group received a 1998 Downbeat Award and also had the privilege of performing with John Secada. Upon graduating, Dayna earned a degree in Jazz Vocal Studies and Studio Music. Once returning to Chicago, Dayna hit the music scene hard. She became the lead female vocalist of "Speakeasy Swing", appeared on VH-1 Rock Across America, opened for Billy Raye Cyrus and was featured on Big Chicago Records 1999 release Jump N Jive Chicago. She then toured the Midwest as lead vocalist for the Milwaukee based "Orphans" and opened for national acts, including the Doobie Brothers and John Hiatt, playing fairs and festivals like Harley Davidson's "Hogfest" and Milwaukee's world renowned "Summerfest". In late 2000, Dayna was cast in the world premiere of the a capella musical, "Klub Kokomo". The five-person Kokomo a capella group performed nightly sets with Mark Lindsay, former lead singer of Paul Revere and the Raiders. Most recently, in Dayna's solo pursuit, she has recorded with the great harmonica legend, Howard Levy, (appearing on "Anywhere but here"), and opened for Elektra recording artist, Alana Davis, and EMI recording artist, Michael Mcdermott. She has appeared at some of the midwest's largest and most prestigious events and festivals including Chicago's annual Country Music Festival, Chicago's "Race for the Cure", Green Bay "Bayfest", and was 1st runner up at Indiana 105's Colgate Country Showdown. Her song "Duermo en las calle", written by herself, Fred Scott, Alberto Gaitan, Ed Williams, and Emilio Estefan, was recently released by Cuban artist (and former grammy nominee) Albita Rodriguez. The song can already be heard on Spanish radio stations throughout the Southeast. In addition to her solo pursuit, Dayna also performs with the USO troupe providing entertainment at special events and military installations throughout the midwest.
