Weiss and Grassow creating a new sound, which works well for the traditional and contemporary listener. Deep and reflective. "This is another big A ambient album, great late night atmospheric music" 5 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Ambient, NEW AGE: Progressive Alternative Details: Right from the opening track 'In', with it's choir like chanting, it's in a heavenly mode. From then on it's in full spirit: tracks run into each other and a more rhythmically then on 'Conscience'. Long sustaining sounds played on synthesizers, backed with a driving rhythm in 'Circles', following by the deep end drones of 'Whole Pulse' (without a pulse really) and going through phases of slow chimes in 'Language Of Silence' to end with chirping insect like sounds of 'Sights', although they are probably more electronically induced than true field recordings. This is another big A ambient album that is even better than 'Conscience' partly because the five pieces nicely flow into eachother, yet each with a different character. More like a seventies conceptual album, but even when the concept may not directly appeal to me, it's still makes great late night atmospheric music."
