Celtic flavored roots music. 11 MP3 Songs in this album (42:30) ! Related styles: FOLK: Celtic Folk, COUNTRY: Country Folk Details: Merisa Donoghue and Les Tibbo (a.k.a. The Dirty Flannel Dawg) have been performing acoustic folk oriented music together for more than 30 years. So, it came as a rather unexpected development when in early 2005 daughter Emily Celeste joined them in their musical endeavor, and thus changed their musical path. The new addition resulted in the forming of Trinitude, and theyve been creating music together ever since. The name Trinitude is the melding of the words trinity, meaning three or trio, and attitude. Hence, 'The Trio with Attitude'. Trinitudes highly melodic and lyrically driven music crosses over into many different genres, but it can be best described as celtic flavoured roots. Each member brings a slightly different musical perspective to their work, from Tibbos country blues influences, to Donoghues folk/singer songwriter pursuits, and Celestes passion for punk rock. While traditional songs in Trinitudes repertoire have a decidedly contemporary flavour, the roots and traditions that fuel their original material can also be easily recognized. In keeping with the tradition of folk music, many of Trinitudes original songs are stories, some are socio-political comments, and others are about personal experiences that people can identify with. Their sound appeals to a diverse audience, and it readily transcends all generational boundaries. Expression through music and writing is not so much what they do, but who they are. They enjoy entertaining, and above all, witnessing how their music brings people together every time Trinitude takes the stage. Trinitude is currently working out of Nanaimo on Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Canada.
