The Complete Sonnets of William Shakespeare. Sonnet number 2. When forty winters shall beseege thy brow. When forty winters shall beseege thy brow, And dig deep trenches in thy beautys eld, Thy youths proud livery, so gazed on now, Will be a tatterd weed, of small worth held: Then being askd where all thy beauty lies, Where all the treasure of thy lusty days, To say, within thine own deep-sunken eyes, Were an all-eating shame and thriftless praise. How much more praise deserved thy beautys use, If thou couldst answer This fair child of mine Shall sum my count and make my old excuse, Proving his beauty by succession thine! This were to be new made when thou art old, And see thy blood warm when thou feelst it cold. Tags: lit
