Details: Not just another 'Lilith Fair' Chick -Talent Magazine Amie Moore was born in Miami, Florida and grew up to the sounds of Latin, blues, folk and rock music. Her mother was a musician, so there was a constant stream of live players throughout Amie's early years. After moving to Canada, Amie started playing guitar and piano. Music was just a part of life as far as she was concerned; watching her mother practice with various bands was a normal evening's entertainment. At the age of fifteen she joined her first group... then another... and so on. Always good at doing things in an unusual order, she then went to music school at the ripe old age of twenty-three after performing professionally for over eight years. After music school she toured in top-forty bands and was a part of several award-winning groups such as Innocent Three and Hand of Fate. Finally, Amie started writing songs. Amie had always thought of herself as a typical "Pop Tart" and was thoroughly shocked to find that she had another talent-songwriter. Amie submitted her material to several publishers, and received promising results. It was then that she moved back down to the United States. Amie began performing her music in prominent Los Angeles establishments, such as Genghis Cohen and The Roxy. Amie currently performs with several well-known Los Angeles-based groups, such as Angelique and Kerry Candaele, as well as with her own group. She can be heard on the soundtracks for Lord of The Rings and for the award-winning documentary film Searching For Paradise. Her song "If I Was Evil" was featured in the independent film Hook, Line Sinker starring Jeremy Sisto of NBC's "Law Order".
