Makar is a 15th century Scottish term meaning Poet and also a dark and groovy little New York band, an awesome five-some with untold musical powers that has convened to put a rock 'n roll smile on the faces of millions. An acoustic guitar and piano driven indie-band that makes Punk and Poet rejoice and dance together. All of Makar wants to give up their day jobs, happily and ecstatically. After all, writing a song like "I Hate My Job" is not just a coincidence. Makar has secretly strange songs that are deceptively catchy, although if you listen too closely to the lyrics you realize you shouldn't be singing along...maybe? Makar began with Mark looking for a band to join as a singer and finding nothing appealing, so Andrea said "why don't you write your own songs?" So he did! But Andrea kept butting in and adding her 2 cents, so Mark said, "why don't you write a song?" So she did. And that's where all the magic began! Makar has had several incarnations, but at its core are the five original members: Andrea DeAngelis, co-singer/songwriter/guitarist from New Jersey, Vicente Viray, co-singer/songwriter/guitarist from California, Dan Coates, bass/palm pilot/mad scientist gear from Minnesota, Jorge Arias, drummer/percussionist from Argentina, and Mark Purnell co-singer/songwriter/pianist from New York City. For too brief a time in 2002-03, we played our first, nail-biting, exciting NY gigs at places like Luna Lounge, CBGBs gallery, Knitting Factory and Pianos and began recording our 18-song debut, 99 Cent Dreams, on July 14, 2002 at Multiway Studios in Williamsburg, Brooklyn. Sadly, changes and demands in three of our band members' personal lives pulled them away from Makar, so Mark and Andrea were left to finish the album singing and playing to Dan, Vince and Jorge's musical ghosts, a comforting foundation for their extended recording hermitage in New Jersey at theRents 3rd floor studio. Now after 3 years the debut album has finally arrived and is available for sale on cdbabyand itunes, but will Makar? We certainly hope so! With a new lineup Makar wants to put a rock and roll smile on your face and shake your hips and minds awake. No more living thick and slow! As Jim Morrison used to say "wake up!" There's a revolution on the internet and in indie music in general, and Makar is ready to take you for a ride!
