Sudden Death's music is a hilarious blend of hip hop and comedy which has made them one of the most requested artists on the Dr. Demento Show in recent years. 15 MP3 Songs HIP HOP/RAP: Rap, SPOKEN WORD: Comedy Details: Sudden Death is one of the premiere musical comedy acts on the scene today. Fronted by comedian Tom Rockwell of New Jersey Sudden Death has become one of the most popular artists on the nationally syndicated Dr. Demento Show. Their song "Inner Voice" was the most requested song of 2005. Sudden Death broke onto the scene in 1998 when "South Park Junkie"- the first song Dr. Demento aired about South park- became the 4th most requested song of the year. Since then Sudden Death has had several number one hits on the show including "Spam," a song about junk emails, and "Ozzman," a backhanded tribute to Ozzy Osbourne. Sudden Death performs regularly across the country at music clubs, comedy clubs, and science fiction conventions. The live show features Tom Rockwell usually performing solo along with videos and animations synchronized with the music. The show often features costume changes, props, and even puppets. The end result is a hilarious show that goes over very well for a variety of audiences. In 2005 Sudden Death released a new album called Die Laughing which features the songs mentioned above plus other hilarious original songs and parodies.
