There is a lot of variety on this album: soaring guitar solos, dynamic improvisations reminiscent of McLaughlin, lyrical melodic effects, aerial textures fused with more dense, passionate, rockish progressive sonorities. The overall concept is perfectly balanced keeping the listener curious until the end of the album. - jazzworldquest.com/ ----- Wow man -- what a disc! I'm blown away! Fret Net is featured in the July 2006 issue of Australian Guitar Magazine, Issue 54 ----- "I was amazed at the samples I heard of your music on Guitar9,... especially 'ILD' and 'This Two This Two',... I get a healthy dose of wannabe-fusion DIY eclectic rock CDs sent to us and just plain sorry releases touted as fusiony-rockish projects but Dajinsaurus really jumped out of the speakers at me today in that "Oh yeah, this is the stuff" way. I am recommending you right now to FuseNet fusion members and will be spinning tracks from your CD for certain on our next show at the globally popular JazzRock-Radiostreaming radio gig -- and yes, feel free quote me! Strong recommendations!" John W. Patterson of JazzRock-Radioand EER-MUSIC.com
