Ever feel like you need something new? Jarbs is the answer. Jarbs has a distinct style, one that can range all boundaries of Electronic music. Once you hear Jarbs, you'll want to hear more. His new album "Full Spectrum", released in March of 2005, includes some of his old work, as well as much of his new. Eight tracks on "Full Spectrum" placed in the finals of the International Songwriter Discovery Network's songwriting competition, and two of the songs won two of the eleven categories. This music can provide aural enjoyment for listeners of just about any genre. So go ahead... take a listen... and enjoy the sounds that only Jarbs can provide! --- The journey my music has taken has been long and winding. Through the past years, I have listened to a number of Trance artists, and I have always known that I could do better. Once introduced to Fruityloops, I knew that I could actually create my ideal Trance music. At first it was a slow start, and my music sounded like it belonged in an old video game. Soon, as I discovered new sounds, styles, procedures, and tricks, my music became distinct and full sounding. I now use the most updated version of FL Studio 5.0, a loop-based music composition program. My major influences have been artists like Armin Van Buuren, Ferry Corsten, and Paul Oakenfold. My aspiration is not to be a DJ; instead I desire to only be a songwriter. What will you find in my music that is hard to come by? My music holds to a strict melody. Sometimes Trance can be just too repetitive. My music integrates the typical rising action, climax, and falling action structure of many songs, books, etc. When you listen to my music, you feel like you are taking on a roller coaster ride for your ears. Only by listening will you understand.
