Quirky eclectic fun mix of tunes from this funky bassist-singer that received airplay throughout U.S. Europe. 16 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, EASY LISTENING: Cabaret Details: It's Me! is "really enjoyable...[a blend of] Warren Zevon, Dan Hicks and Rob Wasserman." -David Mitson, Sony Music "If I were making a movie, I'd have Ritt write a song for it...but I'm writing a book." -Carl Reiner On his debut CD, Ritt Henn careens through life, love and the pursuit of happiness, serving up witty ditties chock-full of clever lyrics, catchy melodies and infectious, bass-driven grooves. A seasoned veteran of the LA club scene, Ritt continues to grow and mature as a writer and performer, honing his unique blend of pith and mirth, proving that intelligence and fun can peacefully co-exist. Highlights from the disc include: "Chicks Dig Me 'Cuz I Bowl" (heard nationally on The Dr. Demento Radio Show); the award-winning ode to being overwhelmed, "Maintenance;" "Away-O," a touching tribute inspired by his last visit with his grandpop; a reggae version of "Sunshine on My Shoulders" that Mike Kelsey of WFHB-FM in Bloomington, Indiana, says "just may be the world's greatest John Denver cover." Ritt's opened for Soupy Sales, been an alien bassoonist on "Star Trek: The Next Generation," played "Stand By Me" with Ben E. King at a used auto parts convention in Las Vegas, and produced and starred in over 140 episodes of the public access TV series, "A Man, a Bass a Box of Stuff," which airs in Los Angeles and New York, as well as on the web at ritthenn.com/tv.html. It all makes for a most eclectic, well-rounded foundation in playing, performing and flat-out entertaining. Ritt Henn is a refreshingly original and joyful force - there's no one else like him. "Very original music...it's just nice to see the bass being used in a new and different way." - Harvie Swartz, recording artist ("Love Notes from the Bass") "[Ritt's] songs betray a kind of whimsy. They're clever both lyrically and musically, and that's something that's always in short supply." - Los Angeles Times While you're here, be sure to check out his latest CD, "Goin' Back."
