This follow-up CD from Sundry features one hour of cutting edge Halloween Party Music Remixes and strange cover tracks by Scott Upper, Der Fancy Boys, Tranceplant, Autoy, Chris Young, and Chambers of Morbid. "Campy and clever...and you can dance to it! Rave-O-Ween 2: Monsters Re-Mixed" has you singing along while still having enough edge to satisfy your inner raver. Each track was especially programmed to kick your Halloween Party, Bash, or Ball into high gear. Rave-O-Ween 2: Monsters Remixed is the second installment of Sundry's Halloween Dance Music series. For more information and additional releases, visit the Sundry website. Press Release: Summer, 2003 Just as the first synthesizer, the Theremin, was embraced by Hollywood Horror films of the 1950's, Techno Music is finding it's natural (or shall we say "supernatural") home at today's Halloween Parties and Productions. In 2002, after scoring a documentary film, Scott Upper was commissioned to start creating music for a large chain of Halloween stores in the the San Francisco Bay Area. In March 2003, Scott brought his music to the Halloween Costume and Party Show in Chicago, an annual event that draws Haunted House production companies, costume manufacturers, novelty distributors, and party stores from all over the country. The show proved to be the perfect venue for Scott's debut CD, Rave-O-Ween. "It was very cool. By the second day, the CD was pumping out of space tunnels, robot heads, flying coffins, and fashion show speakers." There was also a small listening station that paid off in the form of a large queue of advance orders and the incentive to create his second CD, Rave-O-Ween 2:

Monsters Re-Mixed.
