This is the place where you can purchase my new CD anthology, called "dig this". This anthology is a collection of recordings that covers my career from 1986 to 2001. In 1986, I started an ALL-WOMAN blues band called Maggie Mayall The Cadillacs, which featured Debbie Davies on guitar. We were only together for 2 years and never released an album, but we were the REAL THING and we were hot! We were like a cross between The Fabulous Thunderbirds and The Stray Cats. I went on to pursue my own career and later joined a Rock Musical-Comedy group called The Housewives (1988). I took a long hiatus from my own singing career, almost 10 years, to pursue my Master's degree, raise a second child, and work for my husband, blues great John Mayall. I designed and manage his website, run his merchandise business, write songs and produce for him. We inspire each other! I am also working on a book. But I'm getting the itch to sing again! So first, I decided to go back and finish what had been started: I started an archeological DIG, into all the recordings I had made over the years. First order of business: Give the world Maggie Mayall The Cadillacs, because the world needs to hear this. I follow up The Cadillacs with some of my own songs, some great covers of some classics, add a little Housewives, and finish it off with a jazz jam! The album release date was June 13th, 2006, released by our own label, Private Stash Records. I hope you can "dig this"! Maggie Mayall
