Born to West African parents in 1974 and grew up with a strong passion for music that made him famous in school and his local church. He started performing his songs as a teenager with which he constantly entertained his boarding school audiences. Even as a teenager DAmadeus soulful voice and charisma at several live performances made him the charm of many admirers. At the age of fifteen he had compiled a number of songs and was ready to record. In pursuit of sponsorship he approached many producers in West Africa in the hope of being signed on for a contract but they felt his songs were too western for the local audience. DAmadeus went on to form "The Bishops", a gospel group and he wrote many of the songs that made the the group famous as they toured Nigeria. When the group grew apart DAmadeus continued as a solo artist with his unique musical _expression until he moved to London in 2001. After many years in London working in the media world, mastering his abilities in roles such as Graphic Designer, Video Editor, 3D Animator and Multimedia Consultant, to name a few; he has finally decided to return to his first love of singing and song writing. D'Amadeus moved along with his family to America in early 2007 and he now resides in New Jersey. With his melodious rock, DAmadeus captures the heart of his listeners with tender words of love. His narrative of the subject of love defines and captures the realities of the soul. In a world where love is abused, he seeks to restore its charm, value and meaning.
