Details: Fair and Kind is the collaboration of siblings Arthi Meera and Anand Subramanian. Their debut album, A Little Past Twilight, self-released in October 2008, features exquisite vocals, sparkling guitars, and lavish melodies. Arthi Meera and Anand grew up in the suburbs of Chicago, singing along to The Smiths and The Sundays while shuffling between piano lessons and Hindustani classical vocal training. After a decade of playing solo and with different bands, they converged in Los Angeles to form Fair and Kind. Written in the tiny apartment they shared in Little Armenia, A Little Past Twilight unites their years of musical experience with the influences they shared growing up under one roof.
