Awesome album of didgeridoo solos. A groovy mix of upbeat rhythms and hypnotic chill-outs. 12 MP3 Songs
WORLD: Australian, FOLK: Traditional Folk Details: Matt Stevens is an English chap who became fascinated with the didgeridoo after going to a concert by Dr Didge, around 10 years ago. Since that time he has gathered a rather splendid collection of traditional eucalyptus, hempstone and English-made didgeridoos, with which he has developed his own unique style of play. He uses the didgeridoo to entertain, but has also found it indispensable for use in sound therapy sessions, giving incredible stress, pain and anxiety-relieving benefits. He also uses the didgeridoo in healing sessions, finding it a superb meditative aid and helping many troubled souls to relax. This album was created with the aim of sharing his enthusiasm for the didgeridoo. It contains over 1 hour of different tracks in a combination of styles, being mainly raw didgeridoo solos, with some percussion on two of the tracks. The tracks give a combination of upbeat rhythms and hypnotic chill-outs. If you want a more therapeutic experience from the CD lay down and listen with quality earphones, you will find that this relaxes you, clears the mind from stress then leaves you feeling energised. But beware didge resonance is highly addictive! In a nice and none harmful way, of course! Matt Stevens has always had the utmost respect for the Australian Aborigines and their traditional values. All of the profits from the sale of this album will be put towards the purchase of didgeridoos from traditional craftspeople in Australia. Total running time 63.51 If you want to listen to the CD make sure you listen in HIFI click on the play all HIFI button, clicking on individual tracks is in lofi and really doesn't do the CD any justice.
