Working a broad for a few years as a music studio engineer and producer and song writer Plus A busker he adds. Taloch's roots are within the folk of the country and his music speaks for its self. The Dolmen is probably the most rewarding part of his music career and his relentless dedication to portray an atmosphere of communality with the land and its people is outstanding as many discover when they meet him. news . Mike - Drums Mike has worked his way in the music world through a whole host of mediums. These include drum workshops and working with sound engineers in a professional setting. He has always liked the drums and is likened to an animal from the muppets. Yes that's right I didn't say animal. Mike has been inspired by many acts, but says "no-one can top Status Quo, I love them". Mike joined The Dolmen soon after they started and fitted in nicely with similar beliefs. Mike is a very keen performer and is often seen taking his shirt off. Hot work eh Mike? He later played percussion with The Elfin, but is best known as the drummer for The Dolmen. Mike has been known to travel to many parts of the country on a good train, just to watch other drummers perform and is always up for a good chat and lots of fun. Chris - Guitar, Bouzouki, Fiddle and mandolin Chris started off playing the electric guitar from a young age. He has been inspired to play since the age of thirteen, by listening to such greats as Cream, Pink Floyd, Led Zeppelin and The Kinks. This has given Chris a good idea of how both rhythm and lead guitars work together as well as being stand alone instruments. He has always loved 60s and 70s music, so by listening to some of the old Folk heroes has been inspired to pick up the Electric Mandolin and more recently the Bouzouki .
