...an important, insightful, and provocative book that provides a clear blueprint for building stronger communities and families."/>

Mark R. Rank, Herbert S. Hadley Professor of Social Welfare, Washington University

Connecting the Dots/i addresses the complex relationships between family and community, and between community and other players affecting family and community life, including the private sector, government, nonprofit groups, and religious organizations. Wireman argues that America does not suffer from a loss of family values, but from a shift in business practices and public commitments. The book includes bottom-up anecdotal examples to ground its policy-oriented discussion. Wireman provides a framework for policymakers, local community leaders, and neighborhood activists to use in analyzing their situations and selecting the best approach; she also describes what various players can and must do to uphold the American dream.
