Details: Writing songs since sixth grade, for Robbie Jones, this Cd has come full circle. Inspired by his "Good hearted woman loving a good timing man" parents upbringing, music was a natural fit. Having played in talent shows, the school band, and pig pickin's growing up, gave him a little taste of the joy,performing music could bring. Then in the late nineties, a friend ask if he would like to join a band. What was suppose to be one gig, turn into a way of life. That's right Robbie Jones became a "weekend warrior". Playing in several different cover bands,in eastern North Carolina, he finally formed a band called "Color Blind". Being the only white member in the group, he set out, on a mission, to prove with his bandmates that music doesn't have a color. This new band played everything!From Prince to David Allan Coe.From The Stones to Sam Cooke, this band was an instant success. While carrying out this mission, he also became a Disc Jockey. But something was missing. Originality. Playing someone elses music either with an instrument or a cd player wasn't enough. That's when he decided to approach his life long friend, and classmate, Rodney Priester about making a cd. Rodney, having just opened a new studio, felt the time was right. Twelve tracks and a couple of years later, Country Funk was ready for the masses.
