"I see the project as a fusion of my music and my dad's art," says Tom Newton of his latest CD NEWTONFUSION. "dad was a talented and prolific painter, working in a wide range of media on an even wider range of subjects. He was a realist who wasn't afraid to bend reality a bit." Musically, Newton has always been willing to bend the music to express a mood. Significantly, mood has a lot to do with his first all-instrumental album. By focusing totally on instruments I was able to really immerse myself in the music and create the fusion with visual art." As he's matured musically, Newton's music has adopted a more deliberate tempo, yet his signature energy is evident. The result is an eclectic set of tunes that spans a vast musical spectrum. There's a new age feel, peppered with jazz and blues and technorock. New listeners should find NEWTONFUSION a collection of tunes that is innovative and approachable. Fans of Newton will rejoice at a musical experience that is once familiar and altogether new.
